

Chateau Trianon

Pavillon de Trianon Rose

History of the Estate

“The Land Where Wine is King” This estate dates to the 17th century, when this distinct terroir was picked out and used to grow vines by one of Louis 14th’s intendants. Château Trianon was named in honor of the luxurious Versailles Palace. In the 19th century, Trianon was a country retreat surrounded by meadows and vines. Until 1952, less than 10 acres of vines were used to make wine. This was subsequently increased to 6.5 hectares (16 acres). Legendary winemaker & ex-owner of Cheval Blanc Dominique Herbrard purchased the estate and has dedicated his efforts to maximizing it’s potential.

Winemaking and Vinification

The vineyard is certified HVE 3 (high environmental value). Using traditional methods, vinification occurs in temperature-controlled, stainless-steel vats.

Tasting Notes & Food Pairing

“The Pavillon de Trianon range of wines was created to accompany simple moments of relaxation, conviviality, and friendship. After the launch of the Bordeaux White and Red, we wanted to complete the family with a Rose from Provence that is the best vineyard for Rose wines.”

– Dominique Herbrard
